Required Tools

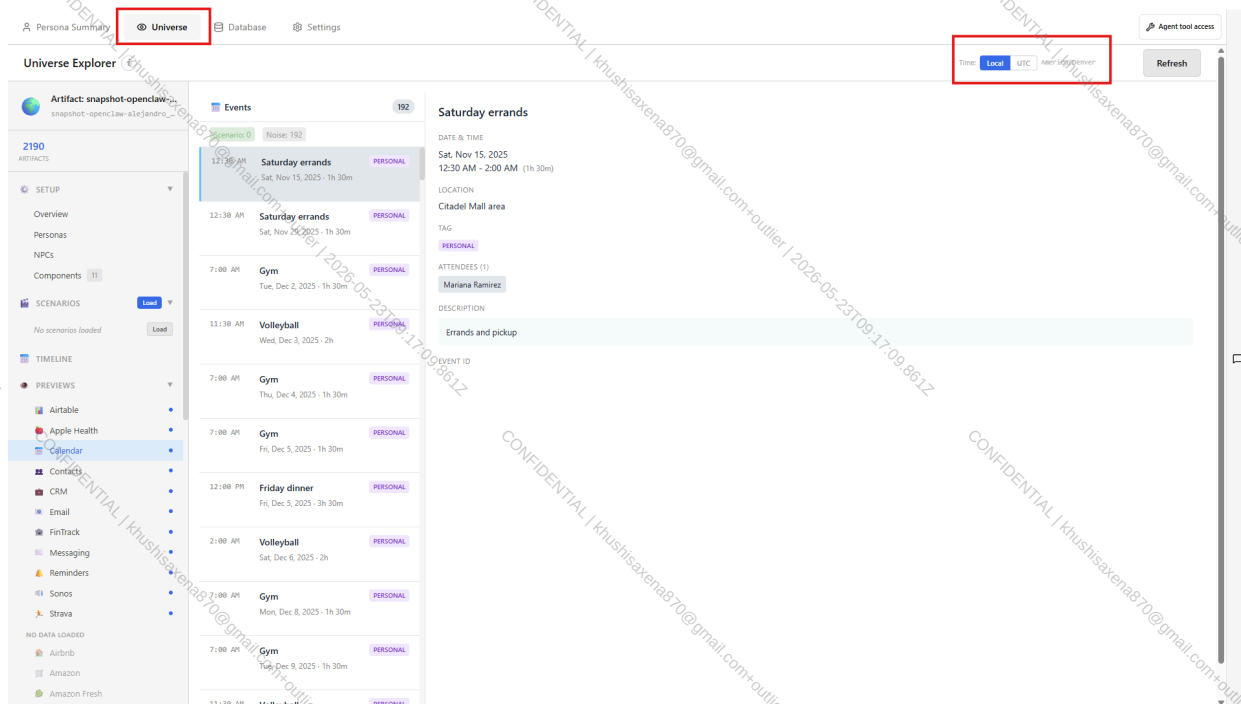

Purple Database Viewer: Your absolute source of truth. Note: Stored datetimes that include hours are always in UTC.

White Universe Viewer: Used to toggle between UTC and Local time displays.

Case A: Purple Database Field Includes Hours

Applies when: The Purple Database Viewer displays a full datetime string or Unix timestamp.

- Examples: 2026-05-28T07:00:00Z, Unix seconds: 1764658800.0, or 1767362400.000000
- Common Servers: Calendar (start_datetime, end_datetime), Email (timestamp), Messaging (timestamp), Reminders (due_datetime), Slack (ts), etc.

Workflow Steps

Prompt example: When is my doctor appointment scheduled for May 28?

1. Read the Value: Identify the exact value in the Purple Database Viewer (e.g., 2026-05-28T07:00:00Z).

2. Open White Universe Viewer: Locate the exact same record in this viewer.
3. Verify UTC: Confirm the UTC time matches your Purple source (e.g., May 28, 7:00 AM UTC).

4. Check Local: Toggle to Local to view the persona's displayed time (e.g., May 28, 1:00 AM local if the offset is UTC-6).

5. Assign to Bucket 1: Place the Local date/time in Bucket 1, "1:00 AM".

Important Rule: Offsets vary wildly by persona. Always use the White Universe Viewer → Local calculation.

Case B: Purple Database Field is Date Only

Applies when: The Purple Database displays a calendar date with no time of the day attached.

- Common Servers: Fintrack (transactions.date, next_billing_date), QuickBooks (TxnDate), Buildium lease dates, Ticketmaster (events.date), and various Airtable date fields.

Workflow Steps

1. Copy the Value: Take the exact date directly from the Purple Database Viewer.
2. Skip Conversion: Do not attempt any UTC/Local conversions. Because there are no hours in the field, timezones do not apply.
3. Assign to Bucket 1: Place the copied date exactly as-is into Bucket 1.

Quick Reference Summary

- Datetime/Unix in Purple (e.g., 2026-05-28T07:00:00Z) → Case A: Use Purple Database Viewer + White Universe Viewer. Output the Local time to Bucket 1.
- Date Only in Purple (e.g., 2025-12-01) → Case B: Use the Purple Database Viewer date exactly as-is for Bucket 1. No conversions.

Common Errors: 1. Prompt Writing (UPDATED 04/29)

Vague Prompts:

Avoid ambiguous words that leave the agent guessing. Vague prompts lead to mismatched Desired Outcomes and failed Quality Checks.

- Avoid Vague Phrases: Replace terms like "seems useful," "relevant info," "including emails," or "some details".
- Be Explicit: If you need specific data points (e.g., email addresses vs. email content), state exactly what you want. Don't let the agent guess!!
- Define Formats: If a specific tool or script type is required for a Skill Gap task, specify it (e.g., "Write a reusable Python script" vs. "Build me a script").

❌ Vague (Bad)	✅ Explicit (Good)
"...and anything else that seems useful ."	"...and include their current lease end date and security deposit amount ."
"...gather their information, including emails ."	"...gather their contact names and primary email addresses ."

Balancing Naturalness

While precision is key, the prompt must still sound like a real human request.

- The "Raw" Rule: Use natural phrasing inspired by real workplace or social discussions.
- Avoid "System Prompts": Do not say "Btw, today is April 29, 2026" or "I am assigning you a Single-App task".
- Contextual Anchoring: Frame requests within a story (e.g., "I'm looking back at records from March" or "I just stepped into this manager role").

Time-Dependent Language

Avoid using relative time markers like "today", "recent", "upcoming", "this week", or "most urgent" in prompts. The correct answer will change depending on when the task is reviewed.

❌ Incorrect (Relative)	✅ Correct (Specific)

"Check my emails from today and summarize the most urgent one."	"Find the email sent on April 9, 2026, regarding the Project X kickoff."
"Show me the nearest upcoming lease dates."	"Pull all lease events and organize them chronologically."

2. Hints (Human-level Plan) Writing This Hint Step is OPTIONAL now!! UPDATED 04/22

Executing Skill Commands Without Reading SKILL.md

The agent must discover available commands by reading the skill documentation before running them. Do not jump straight to execution.

 Incorrect	 Correct
"Step 1: Exec <code>zendesk_data.py list-tickets</code> "	"Step 1: Read <code>zendesk SKILL.md</code> . Step 2: Exec <code>zendesk_data.py list-tickets</code> ."

Incorrect Use of the read Command

The read command is only used for reading local files (like SKILL.md). The agent automatically gets tool call output results from exec or any other tool call, so you do not need to tell it to "read" the output.

 Incorrect	 Correct

"Step 6: exec python script to query database. Step 7: read the tool call output from the exec command."	"Step 6: exec python script to query the database. Step 7: Present the query result to the user."
--	---

Vague Hints

Hints should reference real, specific tools that OpenClaw can use (e.g., write, read, exec, web_search). Do not use generic verbs if a specific tool command is required.

 Incorrect	 Correct
"Create a new Python script to calculate average shoe price." (Note: there is no "create" command)	" write a new Python script to calculate average shoe price."

3. Desired Outcome: Common Errors (UPDATED 04/29)

Vague Desired Outcome in bucket 1

If the database has exact numbers, include them in your desired outcome. Don't leave the expected outcome open to interpretation.

 Incorrect	 Correct
The output must include all booking sources.	The output must list all 5 booking sources with reservation counts, totaling 68 reservations: Hotels.com: 20; Direct: 18; Booking.com: 15; Expedia: 14; Direct Website: 1.

Over-Prescription in Desired Outcome Bucket 1:

A common error is making the Desired Outcome (Bucket 1) stricter than the Prompt. Make sure the desired outcome is not overly-prescriptive, and the Prompt and Desired Outcome should be coherent and consistent!

- MUST vs. SHOULD: Use "MUST" for explicit requirements in the prompt. Use "SHOULD" or "Nice-to-Have (NtH)" for logical but unstated additions or implications.
- Deterministic Data: Always include the exact names, IDs, and numbers the agent is expected to find in the database.

Script Language & Skill Gap Flexibility

For Skill Gap / Self-Extension type of tasks (agent should create a new skill or add a reusable script in existing skills), The skill-creator tool supports multiple languages (Python, Bash, etc.). To avoid "Over-Prescription" errors, follow these rules:

-  How to be Explicit: If you specifically require Python, you must explicitly state it in the prompt: "Create a new skill for [X]; if required, write a reusable Python script for this."
- Align Prompt & Outcome: If the Prompt only asks for "a script" or "a new skill," the Desired Outcome must not limit the agent for choosing Python over Bash or vice versa, provided the functionality is correct.
- The Implementation Disclaimer: When writing Desired Outcomes for scripts, you can add a disclaimer if the language isn't strictly mandated.

Script language disclaimer: The skill-creator process supports Python, Bash, and other languages. If the agent uses a different language the filename and execution command will differ but the functional output and safety behavior must remain identical regardless of implementation language.

Bucket 1 Wording

Use this template to distinguish between hard requirements and flexible outputs:

Bucket 1: Final Response

- Must-Have: The agent must [list/calculate] the following exact data: [Names, IDs, Prices]. It must [be in a table/saved to a .txt file] as explicitly requested.
- Flexible/NtH: If the agent provides [summary/additional columns], this is acceptable as a nice-to-have. But this is not required.
